

Display Board Pack

Everything printable a form room display board needs: two title banners, six section headers, and something to write on under every one of them. Print it, cut it out and put it up. The board, the backing paper and an afternoon are yours to supply. A board with the form's own name across the top and the form's own work underneath is the quickest way to make a room feel like it belongs to them and not to the timetable.

How it works

| Step | What happens                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1    | Decide what the board is for before you print anything. Three sections you use every week beat six that get filled in September and never touched again.                                         |
| 2    | Print on the heaviest paper your photocopier will take. Cut round the edge of the colour on the banners, the pennants and the bunting, and along the dashed line on the cards and the name tags. |
| 3    | Banner across the top, bunting above or below it, and a pennant wherever a section is going to sit. The cards that belong to a section go underneath its pennant.                                |
| 4    | Hand out the name tags in the first week and let students fill in their own, including the one thing they would happily be asked about.                                                          |
| 5    | Change the contents, not the layout. Once the pennants are up, keeping the board alive is a few minutes on a Friday.                                                                             |

Worth knowing

- Every card is printed in a faded version of its own header colour, so dark pen shows up on it and you can see at a glance which section it came from.
- Two of the six sections are filled by other resources rather than by cards: Small Wins Board goes under Small wins, and Values Posters go under Our values. Both are free on the site.
- This one genuinely takes an afternoon the first time: printing, cutting, backing the board and putting it up. Everything after that is quick, and nothing in the pack has a year on it, so the same board works next September with new name tags.
- The bunting comes blank so the form can spell out whatever the board is called. Write the letters on in marker once the flags are cut, then fold the top strip over a length of string.

It is the form's board rather than yours. Let them fill it.

Title banners

Two banners for the top of the board. Write your form on the first one in the biggest pen you own. Cut round the edge of the colour, including the notches at each end.

Section headers

Three of the six. Cut round the colour, notch included. What goes underneath each one is on the pages that follow.

Small wins

Something that went well

Small Wins Board, free on the site, is the resource that goes under this one.

Proud of this

Work worth showing other people

Coming up

Dates the form needs to know

Section headers

The other three.

Ask me about

Who knows what in this room

Our values

The words we use here

Values Posters, free on the site, are what go under this one.

Notices

Everything else

Cards for Proud of this

One goes up beside each piece of work: whose it is, what it is, and why it is worth looking at. Printed in a faded version of the header colour, so dark pen shows.

Cards for Coming up

One card per thing that is coming up: the date in the box, the event underneath. Take a card down as it passes and put the next one up.

| COMING UP                            | COMING UP                            |

Cards for Notices

Blank, so anything can go on them: a headline in marker, a photo, a letter home, a reminder that does not belong under one of the other headers.

Name tags for Ask me about

Students fill in their own, including the one thing they would happily be asked about. Cut along the dashed line and punch the circle if you are hanging them.

Bunting

*Write a letter on each flag in marker and string them along the top of the board, or leave them blank.
Print as many sheets as the board is wide.*

Fold along the dashed line and hang the flag over a length of string or tape.
