

Praise Postcards

A printable postcard for passing on a bit of praise. A teacher can give one to a student, or a student can send one to a teacher or to another student; you just circle who it is for.

Print these

Page	What it is
Pages 2 and 3	The postcards, three to a page. Print a couple of sheets to start with, and cut along the dashed lines.

How it works

Step	What happens
1	Cut the sheets apart and keep the postcards somewhere easy to reach: a desk, a tray, a form room drawer.
2	Write who it is for, circle whether that is a teacher or a student, write the praise, and sign it.
3	Give it to the person it is for, or add it to a praise wall or class display.
4	Top up the stack whenever it runs low. A postcard only helps if there is one within reach.

Worth knowing

- Let students write postcards to each other, not just to staff.
- Praise counts for more when it is not rare, so keep the stack topped up.
- Works well alongside Certificate Templates for the bigger moments.

The only preparation is one round of cutting. After that the stack is ready to use all year.

Praise Postcards

Cut along the dashed lines. Photocopy for as many as you need.

A POSTCARD OF PRAISE

To:

This one's for (circle one):

A TEACHER

A STUDENT

This is because...

From:

A POSTCARD OF PRAISE

To:

This one's for (circle one):

A TEACHER

A STUDENT

This is because...

From:

A POSTCARD OF PRAISE

To:

This one's for (circle one):

A TEACHER

A STUDENT

This is because...

From:

Praise Postcards (continued)

Cut along the dashed lines. Photocopy for as many as you need.

 A POSTCARD OF PRAISE

To:

This one's for (circle one):

A TEACHER	A STUDENT
------------------	------------------

This is because...

From:

 A POSTCARD OF PRAISE

To:

This one's for (circle one):

A TEACHER	A STUDENT
------------------	------------------

This is because...

From:

 A POSTCARD OF PRAISE

To:

This one's for (circle one):

A TEACHER	A STUDENT
------------------	------------------

This is because...

From: